

Use of AI

We assign each project to a real human attorney, who does the work. You can always reach that attorney by phone or email with questions.

AI cannot write a brief or memo which matches our quality standards. We are experimenting with the use of AI to improve efficiency, but AI does not write our products for us. We fully recognize the ethical duty of all attorneys to review AI materials for accuracy before submitting them to any court or client.

National Legal Research Group

*Lawyers Working For Lawyers
Since 1969*

We are a firm of research attorneys, located just west of Charlottesville, Virginia. We founded the legal research industry in 1969, with the goal of providing high-quality research and analysis to licensed attorneys in all forms of practice. We do research and writing for you, so that you can focus your attention on other areas of your practice—or your life.

Since 1969, NLRG has served more than 55,000 attorneys nationwide on over 180,000 research projects.

What We Do

From case evaluation through appeal, we offer a broad range of products, both objective and advocacy.

Our objective products can help you evaluate a case, or give you sources to cite in a product of your own.

If you need advocacy, we can draft pleadings, motions, trial briefs and appellate briefs.

For a list of specific products we can prepare, see the back page of this brochure.

How We Operate

When we receive your request, the case is assigned to an attorney who routinely works in the relevant area of law

Before starting work, we give you a budget estimate. We never exceed the budget estimate without your prior permission. You have complete control over the cost incurred.

Billing rates start at $190 per hour. If you need a project completed within 3-5 working days, we charge $235 per hour. If you need a project completed within 1-2 days, we charge $285 per hour. In addition, there is a 6% computer research charge on all projects.
